POLO & LUXURY

From the outside, only the high-quality wooden cladding of the garage and entrance doors indicates the individual interior design of the property. And this individual interior design, created by Matthias Zbären, inspires down to the smallest detail.

Zbären has succeeded in harmoniously combining the different style worlds and the client's dress code. The overall combination surprises with unusual material combinations, with solid wood dominating. Its processing is the core competence of the company from the Simmental in the Bernese Oberland. Fine materials combined with high-quality craftsmanship characterize the ambience here. The house presents itself as a feel-good oasis, which is virtuoso in its workmanship, perfect in its functionality, outstanding in its attention to detail and

Interior design at its best: ZBÄREN sets new standards in tailor-made interior design

Creativity, competence, and virtuosity create oases of well-being in a class of its own

Benjamin and Matthias Zbären create tailor-made living dreams that embrace their residents with comfort, pamper their eyes with design and know how to inspire with functionality down to the smallest detail. "Our projects are as individual as our customers. We are absolutely focused on the wishes of our customers. Our art is to create a design tailor-made with the customer's wishes and with the circumstances of the property and to create living environments in which our customers feel comfortable, says Matthias Zbären."

The project that we are introducing to you today shows that this can sometimes be a very challenging task: In this specific case, the aim was to bring two very different styles under one roof. In other words: The lady imagines a country house with massive doors in light colors, but the client prefers a simple, straightforward design in dark tones. The aim was to combine both styles in such a way that no inharmonious coexistence arises, but rather that the two ideas fertilize each other and result in a coherent, unique whole.

with maximum individuality, captivating residents, and visitors alike.

The building permit for the building envelope had already been granted when the clients gave Zbären the order to completely plan and carry out the interior work. "We haven't changed much in the basic concept, we have only the room layout redesigned and the terrain at the entrance floor has been changed so that the guest area and the office also have floor-level windows and doors to the outside area," explains Matthias Zbären.

The heart of the house is the high, open living room with the individual kitchen. The roof construction is impressive with its wooden beam framework that is also visible from the inside. Zbären cleverly uses light to create the mood throughout the room. For example, the two kitchen pieces of furniture, which house the sink on the one hand and the sideboard on the other, are underlaid with a strip of light so that the bodies almost seem to float.

The floor-to-ceiling kitchen cabinets placed along the back wall house the oven, steamer, warming drawer, a dough machine and the food center with fridge and freezer. If required, this part of the kitchen can be hidden behind two sliding doors.

The elegant, dark oak flooring that runs through the entire house connects the individual areas harmoniously with one another. The implementation of the individual wishes of the two clients is most evident in the sleeping area.

Only the sky is the limit

Every design from Zbären Manufacture is as individual as its worldwide customers. Benjamin and Matthias Zbären were born with a passion for high-quality interior fittings. Already in the third generation, the two brothers design dream homes that set new standards in interior design.

For Benjamin and Matthias Zbären it is an affair of the heart that they implement the wishes of their customers as closely as possible with their individual designs. The tailor-made designs are created by the two managing directors personally.

The Zbären Manufacture employees work with great care and excellent craftsmanship. Zbären uses only the highest quality, noble materials, with wood and other natural materials dominating. Whether classic country house style, modern living close to nature or an elegant ambience, the Zbären Manufacture masters the entire range.

The bedroom of the lady of the house is kept in soft beige and white tones and reflects a dignified, light-footed country house style. The dressing table with backlit shelves reflects the so-called country house style most clearly. The bedroom of the master of the house presents itself soberly and completely straightforward. Oak furniture dominates here, which has been cleverly combined with the dark leather back head of the bed.

The walk-in dressing room that connects the two bedrooms was designed in a dreamlike and functional manner. The handcrafted mega highlight of the main bathroom, which can be reached through the walk-in dressing room, is the wash stand made from a single block white natural stone.
